

In a recent article out of Becker's ASC Review, Orthopaedic Specialty Group, PC(OSG) was highlighted as one of 24 orthopaedic practices in the United States which offers a team of sports medicine physicians providing comprehensive care to its community. OSG(Fairfield, CT) was among a list of nationally, even world renowned, orthopaedic practices, including Andrews Sports Medicine and Orthopaedic Center, Kerlan Jobe Orthopaedic Clinic, The Steadman Clinic, and University of Pittsburgh Medical Center Sports Medicine.

The sports medicine division of OSG consists of Drs. Robert Stanton, Dante Brittis, Rolf Langeland, Henry Backe, Patrick Kwok, and James FitzGibbons. Dr. Stanton was recently named the president of the American Orthopaedic Society for Sports Medicine. The doctors, who are also on staff at area hospitals, provide coverage for Fairfield High School, Fairfield Preparatory College, Fairfield University, Bridgeport Bluefish professional baseball team, Bridgeport Soundtigers professional hockey team, U.S. Alpine ski team, U.S National Soccer Federation, and USA Gymnastics.

Additionally, OSG is the largest, most recognized orthopaedic practice in Fairfield County. With seventeen physicians and 8 physician assistants in 3 offices, OSG can offer the most advanced orthopaedic surgical and non-surgical techniques, pain management, rehabilitation, and neurosurgery. Each office has a complete imaging center to meet the patients' x-ray needs. The Fairfield Surgery Center, in the main office, is an AAAHC accredited, Medicare-certified facility staffed with board-certified anesthesiologists. This patient-friendly center provides a pleasant, homelike atmosphere while patients undergo state-of-the-art outpatient treatments.

Orthopaedic Specialty Group. Exceptional People. Exceptional Care. For more information on the article and Orthopaedic Specialty Group, PC, log onto www.osgpc.com.